

Marth Smith-Blackmore, DVM
Forensic Veterinary Investigations, LLC
Massachusetts

Dr. Martha Smith-Blackmore is a veterinarian and president of a private veterinary forensics consulting firm, Forensic Veterinary Investigations, LLC. Her firm provides investigative support to law enforcement departments in cases of questioned injury or death in animals.

Dr. Smith-Blackmore teaches Veterinary Forensics and Animal Law & Veterinary Medicine at the Cummings School of Veterinary Medicine at Tufts University and she is an associate member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, appointed to the IACP's Forensic Science Committee.

She is an associate member of the American Academy of Forensic Sciences; a board member of the International Veterinary Forensic Sciences Association and she is a professional consultant affiliate of the National Association of Medical Examiners.

Dr. Smith-Blackmore frequently requested to consult on animal cruelty cases by prosecutors, defense attorneys, police departments and animal control officers throughout Massachusetts and around the country. Her motivation to protect animals is because they deserve it, and because it helps to make the world safer for all of us.
